DEDICATION

Peering into a microscope, cuddling a kinkajou, setting up an experiment, tramping through the woods, Dr. E. Dan Cappel is a dedicated and enthusiastic man, exploring the mysteries of life with a remarkable eagerness and exuberance, and sharing these secrets with his students.

Understanding, tireless, generous, joyful, Dr. Cappel is at once an instructor and a scientist, a leader and a participant, a teacher and a friend.

He is truly a man of nature.

BEHIND THE SCENES

FOREIGN LANGUAGE

There are several outstanding new facilities in the Language Department, chaired by Mr. Coppola, which enables a more individualized program for each student. One of these is the new language laboratory. This laboratory has 120 stations where listening, recording and testing can be done. Many new films, listening tapes and equipment have been purchased to provide an excellent resource in the foreign language area for all students involved. Mr. Coppola hopes that in future years, every student in the high school will have an experience with these facilities.

The PDP-8E computer and its four on-line teletypes prompted a revitalization of the mathematics curriculum. During the summer, a computer workshop was held to acquaint the members of the department with the new facility and to implement its operation into the program.

Every student who enrolls in a mathematics course experiences writing and executing programs. The programs may minimize arithmetic computation but at the same time the process of writing a program tends to solidify the understanding of a mathematical concept.

BUSINESS EDUCATION

ELLEN ARCELLA

JOAN JARUSINSKY

The Business Education Department, headed by Mrs. Eileen Kropp, has many exciting innovations. The four machine rooms are all electric, and two of them are wired to the Dial Access system. This permits tape flexibility both in typewriting and stenography. These rooms are uniquely designed to facilitate the teaching of skill and business orientee subjects to meet the needs of the modern changing world.

HOME ECONOMICS

The Home Economics Department, headed by Mrs. Brosius, offers students a chance to take interesting as well as beneficial courses. Foreign foods, interior decorating and foods for entertaining for example have proved to be popular with the students. If a student wishes she may take a clothing or nutrition course that will certainly help her in the future. The year is capped off with a Fashion Show presenting the students' own creations.

CLAUDE SHEA
Department Chairman

The Fine Arts Department, headed by Chester Miller, has been able this year to expand its facilities and curriculum offerings. This was due largely to the ample room and the up-to-date art equipment provided in the new high school facility.

The Industrial Arts Department, headed by Claude Shea, has facilities for woodworking, metal working, drafting, power mechanics, graphic arts, and electricity-electronics. This year has been spent setting up the new shop. We hope to have all areas in full operation in the near future.

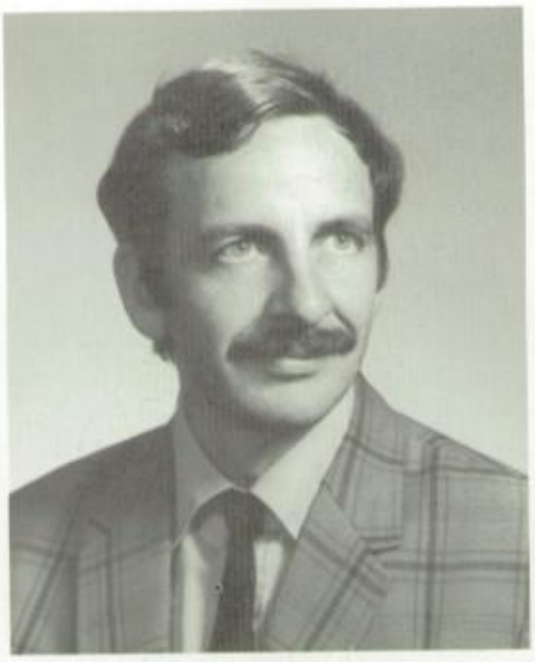
SCIENCE



E. DAN. CAPPEL

REGINA BRYLA

A science curriculum is developed to meet certain human interests and needs, and utilizes a variety of approaches toward that end. It deals with learning and using those concepts, principles and facts which help man to better understand the world in which he lives. But this is only the beginning. Of equal importance is learning how the scientific investigator works in developing new information. For this reason, most of the science courses at Wilton High are of the lab-oriented, inquiry type wherein the student himself becomes the investigator. In these courses a student has the opportunity to develop skills, and scientific attitudes such as curiosity, objectivity, intellectual honesty and humility, and to realize their importance in his own daily experiences. From the array of course offerings in science at Wilton High, what science is, what it can and cannot do will begin to emerge and take its proper place as an exciting creative process closely intertwined with human goals and aspirations.

SOCIAL STUDIES

WILLIAM MACLENATHEN
Department Chairman

"Young—especially in spirit" is how chairman William MacLenathen describes the school's social studies department. Though professing differing political party affiliations, all members of the department share an eagerness to express their opinions and an ability to respect the thoughts of others. From field trips to guest speakers, debates to simulation games, film-making to poll-taking, the social studies department is constantly trying and evaluating teaching methods, constantly updating curriculum while maintaining a reverance for tradition and keeping an eye to the future. All of this is part of the department's attempt to ready students for responsible, careful decision-making as citizens, able to analyze current events through understanding of and respect for the past.

ENGLISH

The English Department, composed of twelve highly individualistic seekers after truth, manages to "get it all together" long enough to develop semester and then quarter courses. We recognize the fate of the experimenter hailed by some, damned by others, we plunge ahead, past the remains of SILAS MARNER, the bones of "Sinners in the Hands of an Angry God", and "Memorize for tomorrow the rules for the use of the semi-colon" toward some golden future in which all students "would gladly learn" and "we would gladly teach."

RESOURCE CENTER

The new Resource Center is a popular place, as well as being the most attractive part of the new high school.

Its 170 seats are usually filled. Here students come to study, read, do research, listen to records and cassettes, view filmstrips and 8mm film loops. Here they may refer to back issues of magazines or the New York Times on microfilm, catch up with missed classwork or do independent study with the aid of the Dial Access.

Mrs. Muller and the three library aides are busy every moment of the day, and circulation of library books has risen a third over a year ago.

MUSIC

The Music Department aims to familiarize its students with many types and styles of music, as well as to encourage the performance of them. Lessons are offered to interested students and are required for those participating in ensemble courses. Music history and theory are also offered to students interested in furthering their study of music in a conservatory or university. In addition, the music department possesses a Putney Music Synthesizer, offering students an opportunity to experiment with electronic music.

The football squad came through with a respectable 4-4-1 season in its first year in the FCIAC. Our biggest victory was an exciting 26-20 come back win over Ridgefield. Co-Captains Ben Kingsbury and Hal Toms led the blues outstandingly throughout the season.

In spite of a losing record in the FCIAC, the Warriors had some bright spots and some good players. A surprise win over Stamford and victories over Greenwich, Darien, and Stamford Catholic were among the highlights of the year. Seniors Mike Woods, Curt Gillespie, and Darrell Hapken played solidly throughout the season, and the performance of sophomore John Dedon indicated that there is talent coming up.

SWIMMING

The swim team was again hampered by the lack of pool time and experienced competitors. There were only three seniors on the team. The outlook for next year, however, promises to be one of the team's best. Five out of the top six scorers this year were sophomores. Also the swim team next year has total use of the new Wilton "Y" pool.

HOMECOMING

A thrilling 1-0 upset soccer triumph, an exciting 30-22 victory on the gridiron, the crowning of a queen, and a highly successful dance combined to make the seventh annual WHS Homecoming another joyous occasion for students, parents, and alumni.

Though a stagnant air mass forced cancellation of the pep rally bonfire on Friday night, Oct. 22, the sun broke through the clouds Saturday morning as the Wilton soccer team stopped previously unbeaten and unscored-upon Staples, 1-0. A line-drive direct kick by all-conference center halfback Jeff Hargadon was the only score in the stunning upset win.

After the traditional tail-gate picnic, the Warrior football squad followed with a hard-fought 30-22 triumph over Andrew Warde. Fullback and team co-captain Ben Kingsbury led the attack with 189 yards rushing and two touchdowns.

Half-time ceremonies included the parade of floats and, of course, the crowning of a queen. A panel of judges voted the freshman float, a caged paper mache Andrew Warde eagle, the best of the five entries—the first time the freshmen had ever won this honor. Also placing floats in the procession were the varsity club and the sophomore, junior, and senior classes.

Bill O'Hearn, co-chairman of Homecoming with Steve O'Connor, introduced the five queen finalists—Nan Carroll, Karen Davidson, Patty Dolson, Diane Robinson, and Roz Walrath. Finally, a crown, a bouquet of roses, and a kiss from athletic director Nick Zeoli were presented to Karen as she was declared Wilton's queen.

A dance that night capped off the festivities, and another memorable WHS Homecoming came to a happy close.

the new optics... a looking glass to tomorrow

Our young scientists are using the new optics to look into the next decade. And beyond.

They are combining laser and optics into optical data processing systems. Using optical instruments to probe the universe and unlock the secrets of molecular structure. Developing the laser into a communications tool for outer space and a measuring tool here on earth.

These and many other engrossing projects are possible because Perkin-Elmer is in the forefront of the new optics.

If you would like to help develop this young technology, consider a career in science. At Perkin-Elmer, Norwalk, Connecticut. An equal opportunity employer.

PERKIN-ELMER

Perkin-Elmer Physicist Betsy Alte experiments with laser-reflecting prism assembly similar to one left on moon.
